Sumter STI and Teen Pregnancy Reduction Meeting

After on campus meetings involving the College of Public Health, Extension and the UGA Center for Family Research, a local partner in the Charter School was identified to implement curriculum aimed at the reduction of risky behaviors. Specifically, CASA and Archway will continue to work with the exploratory committee to identify and evaluate resources to develop K-5 standards that compliment and build a foundation for programs like Relationship Smarts with the end goal being the development of a comprehensive K-12 program to address poor health indicator standards in rural communities like STIs, teen pregnancy and mortality.
