Leadership Development
The Hart County Chamber of Commerce, Hart County Archway Partnership and the J.W. Fanning Institute partnered to host two Leadership Hart Youth train-the-trainer workshops on Dec. 4 and Dec. 11. The workshops prepared 15 local instructors/facilitators for the new youth leadership program, which will use Fanning’s Youth in Action curriculum and will launch in January 2015. Archway assisted with grant writing to obtain funds for the curriculum and the workshop, and helped coordinate the workshops.

Economic Development
Archway assisted the Hart County Industrial Building Authority with connections to higher education resources as part of the Dec. 10 industry announcement of Häring a German automotive manufacturer. UGA Economic Development Director Sean McMillan and Archway Professional Ilka McConnell are helping the manufacturer to connect with institutions of higher and technical education in both Georgia and South Carolina for recruiting and other resources.
