Griffin-Spalding Archway Hosts Listening Sessions

The Griffin-Spalding County Archway Partnership held two Listening Sessions on June 2 facilitated by faculty from the Archway Partnership, the J.W. Fanning Institute for Leadership Development and other academic units from across campus. The event was open to the community and over 50 individuals participated in the sessions. Community members were asked to provide input on positive and negative trends impacting the community, what specific things could be done to improve the community and to identify opportunities and assets that could assist the Archway Partnership with enacting desired changes.

These sessions provide an opportunity for the Archway Partnership to develop a better understanding of the impacts facing Griffin-Spalding County. From the final report created, the Griffin-Spalding County Archway Partnership Executive Committee will identify the top priority needs and challenges in the community. These sessions also offer community members the chance to learn more about the Archway Partnership and how it operates.
