Pulaski County residents attend Archway Summit
Shelly Berryhill and Lee Slade represented the Pulaski Archway Partnership at the second Archway Summit held Feb. 8-9 at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education. Slade discussed the numerous regional projects that have been part of the Pulaski Archway work plan. Then, on February 10-11, Pulaski Tomorrow Chairman Jason Lord and program graduate Michael King attended the Fanning Institute’s Community Leadership Conference on Feb. 10-11. Pulaski Archway Professional Michelle Elliott also shared best practices in one of the Leadership Conference workshops.

Pulaski Youth Leadership Class of 2015-16
Graduation for the 20 young people who have participated in this year’s youth leadership class will be on March 15. These students will be recognized for their accomplishments at a reception for their family and friends. They attended a four month series of classes and learning experiences including trips to the Georgia Capitol, Georgia Aquarium and Georgia Southern University. For the first time, one student will be selected to receive a college scholarship named for former Pulaski Tomorrow Chairman Robert Herman.

Looking Forward

2016 TEEN Maze plans underway
Plans for the 2016 TEEN Maze are underway. This year’s event is scheduled for April 21 at Hawkinsville High School. The Maze brings together over 200 community volunteers for a one day event on the high school campus that reaches nearly 600 students in 7th-12th grades. The purpose of the Teen Maze is to encourage good personal choices by youth in a safe environment and to promote high school graduation. The Maze features a number of activities including a staged vehicle accident scene and a functioning emergency room. The event is coordinated by the Pulaski Archway Community Health Issue Work Group, Family Connection and Pulaski Tomorrow.
